

RE Progression

Religion: Hinduism

Concepts: Dharma, Karma.

Dharma: is simply translated as ‘duty’ or ‘righteousness’; it is about behaving in accordance with your essential nature.

Diwali: is a Hindu festival of light where it symbolizes the spiritual "victory of light over darkness, good over evil, and knowledge over ignorance.”

Karma: literally means ‘action’, but implies both an action and its consequences. Hindus believe that whatever people do produces a result which cannot be avoided. This is the ‘Law of Karma’, or cause and effect; each action has a reaction,

YR	Y1	Y2	Y3	Y4	Y5	Y6
				I can identify what duty is recalled by Hindus at Raksha Bandhan. I can explain what dharma means for Hindus. I can suggest why Rama, Sita, Lakshman and Hanuman inspire all Hindus. I can recall the story of Rama and Sita and suggest how it inspires Hindus to follow their dharma. I can explain why Hindus are encouraged to ‘Be as Rama’ or ‘as Sita’. I can talk about some important rituals that take place at a Hindu wedding.		I can explain that Moksha is the liberation or freedom from the cycle of birth-death-rebirth (samsara). I can reflect on how many different pathways there are to achieve one goal. I understand that in Hinduism all life is a journey towards one goal: MOKSHA which is a reunion with God. I can explain the importance of the story of The Bhagavad Gita; a key Hindu text in which Krishna (an avatar of Vishnu) has a dialogue with Prince Arjuna, who is facing a big battle. I can reflect on Arjuna’s dilemma.

RE Progression

				I can talk about the duties or dharma of a Hindu marriage. I can make links to the duties people have in different religions or at different ages. I can suggest duties that myself and my family have towards each other. I can talk about how Hindus use the game 'Snakes and Ladders' to teach children about good and bad karma. I can reflect on who is responsible for our actions. I can reflect on why karma is important to Hindus. I know that Hindus believe in reincarnation i.e. when they die, their soul lives on and moves into a new body on numerous occasions. I know that this cycle of birth and death is called Samsara. I can reflect and discuss this belief. I can explain what moksha is. I can explain how Hindu parents help their children learn about good actions (karma)		I can discuss that life is like a battle sometimes and give my opinion on this. I can explain the advice that Krishna gave Arjuna and explain what he decided to do. I can explain how Hindus use Krishna's teaching in the Bhagavad Gita to help them in life. I understand that there are different pathways to moksha and that they would suit different people. I can explain each pathway is known as YOGA. I can reflect on my own pathway if I were a Hindu. I can explain the bhakti yoga as a pathway to moksha. I can discuss and reflect on which spiritual pathway is practised most in the Hindu community. I can explain how Hindus show devotion to a deity. I can explain how Hindu children get ready to celebrate and show their devotion to Krishna
--	--	--	--	---	--	--

RE Progression

				and why do they think this is important I can explore selfless kindness. I can explain that Sewa Day or 'Service' day was started by Hindus who wanted to make a difference in the world. I can explain what happens at the Upanayana(m) Ceremony .
--	--	--	--	--	--	--